THE PUBLIC DEBT OF VIRGINIA. -It is urged by the Richmond Enquirer, that before the Legislature of Virginia undertakes to provide for the payment of the interest on the public debt of the State, it should first assign to Western Virginia the part of the debt and interest properly belonging to her, which she must assume-say one-fourth of the whole .-This would leave as Virginia's portion about thirty millions of dollars-a sum much greater than our people are capable of meeting at this time with all their other liabilities. Unless such an apportionment of the debt is made between the two States, Virginia will have to assume the whole of it, and that she is unablato do. Despoiled of one half of her territory and all of her negro and personal propertycrushed down with poverty and debt, with nothing to pay with but her poor lands, which barely furnish support to her stricken peopleit would be a great outrage for the Legislature of Virginia to assume, in any way, the payment of more than our just proportion of the public debt of the State. That portion will be about thirty million of dollars. Indeed, it will require all the wisdom of the Legislature to make provision to discharge that amount without overburdening the people with taxation.

The Enquirer says: "Let us apportion the debt, in advance of a settlement, on such basis as, in our best judgement, is equitable. Let us accertain what percentage of the debt is ours, and what pertains to West Virginia. Suppose this should prove to be, on the proper investigation, seventy per ct. and thirty per ct. respectively. Let us, then, address ourselves to the task and duty, of providing for our portion the best we may. Let us consider ourselves indebted for seventy per ct. of the face of each bond, and deal with holders accordingly; leaving them to West Virginia for the residue. The advantages of such a policy would be manifold. It would expedite a settlement by taking away all profits from delay. It would concentrate the pressure of public opinion, and the clamors of creditors, upon West Virginia, and make a repudiating policy almost impossible, it such is contemplated there, as many believe."-Lynchburg Republican.

Congress.-In the Senate yesterday, after the introduction of several resolutions of no general interest, the bill to allow colored suffrage in the District of Columbia was again taken up. After a protracted debate the proposition to extend the elective franchise to females was rejected-yeas 9, nays 37. Pending the further consideration of the bill the Senate adjourned.

The House, after debate, recommitted the bill to repeal the law of 1790, which provides that no trial for treason shall take place three years after the commission of the acc. A bill was passed authorizing the President to confer brevet rank, with the consent of the Senate, upon officers appointed to the regular service for gallant action in the volunteer service .-The bill to regulate appointments to and removals from office was then taken up. An amendment was adopted, by a vote of 78 to 77, to allow the President to appoint the assistants and clerks of the several departments, instead of giving, as originally proposed, the power to make such appointments by the heads of the departments. The bill was then laid over until to-day.

THE VIRGINIA GOVERNMENT. - If it be the purpose of Congress to break up the State governments which have sprung from the provisional governments organized by President Johnson, it can scarcely be supposed that Virginia will be included in the programme. The validity of the present Virginia government, of which Governor Peirpoint is the head, has been repeatedly recognized by Congress, during the war. The Senators and Delegates elected under the Alexandria Constitution were permitted to take their seats, and after the war, in strict accordance with the views of President Lincoln and of the Chief Justice of the U. S. the administration of Governor Peirpoint was extended over the whole State. The Radicals are consequently, committed to the recognition of the present States government, which is a creation of their own and which they are bound in consistency to preserve. - Baltimore Transcript.
